Breast Cancer Management 2015

Overview

This program will review the current state-of-the-art in breast cancer diagnosis and management, highlighting the key components of multidisciplinary treatment to include surgery, medical oncology, radiation, radiology, pathology, and psychology. Current understanding of screening, epidemiology and prevention strategies will be discussed. Emphasis will be given to emerging technologies which improve our ability to provide highly personalized breast cancer management through improved understanding of tumor biology and genetics. Active areas of most promising research and active clinical trials will be discussed. The format of this program will consist of lectures and case studies. Expert faculty will serve on a breast cancer tumor board at the end of each session to interactively discuss the multidisciplinary perspectives on the evaluation and treatment of patients at high risk for breast cancer and those with early stage and advanced disease. Therapeutic interventions with areas of current clinical controversy will be highlighted.

Target Audience

This program has been designed for primary care physicians, obstetricians, gynecologists, internists, medical oncologists, radiation oncologists, gynecological oncologists, surgical oncologists, radiologists, nurses, and any other clinicians involved in the management and treatment of patients with breast cancer.

Learning Objectives

- Describe novel surgical techniques for breast and lymph node preservation
- Discuss partial breast irradiation and novel radiation techniques
- Identify optimal multidisciplinary approaches to personalized breast cancer treatment
- Define optimal breast surveillance in cancer survivors
- Identify novel targets for systemic therapy
- Assess recommendations for adjuvant systemic chemotherapy and hormonal therapy
- Outline the role of individual risk assessment using genetic analysis to allow for personalized approach to care
- Evaluate special breast cancer considerations in pregnant women

Accreditation

The College of Physicians and Surgeons of Columbia University is accredited by the Accreditation Council for Continuing Medical Education to provide continuing medical education for physicians.

AMA Credit Designation Statement

The College of Physicians and Surgeons designates this live activity for a maximum of 3.5 AMA PRA Category 1 Credits™. Physicians should claim only the credit commensurate with the extent of their participation in the activity.

Nurses, Physician Assistants, and Technicians are encouraged to check with their accrediting organization to ensure they accept AMA PRA Category 1 Credits™.

Support

We expect support for this program through grants from pharmaceutical and medical device companies.
