

Choosing the Right Hospital When You are In Another Hospital

If you need to be transferred from one hospital to another, it is important to make sure that the new hospital has the full complement of services available that may be required during the course of your care. For instance, if you are experiencing problems related to pregnancy, you will want to ensure the hospital is equipped to handle potential threats to your baby's health. Or if you have had a history of heart problems and need another treatment, you would want to ensure that experienced cardiologists and cardiac surgeons are available should anything unexpected occur.